|Saturday Meet To Launch Trout Group

A meeting at the Grayling Legion Hall this Saturday morning at 10 a. m. is expected to formally launch a new group known as "Trout Unlimited".

The meeting will be presided over by George Griffith, Grayling Conservation Commissioner is temporary chairman. Mr. Griffith said that the movement has created wide interest among resonsible sportsmen.

The new group will carry or heir work similarly to Ducks Unlimited which is an interna-tional group of sportsmen pledged to aid the preservation of the duck flights.

Trout, Unlimited will work with conservation groups and other authorities to conserve trout and to preserve trout fishing through a sound, scientific and practical trout management program.

May Keep Flies Only Water

With more time needed to complete research on effects of "flies only" fishing regulations the Conservation Department recommended to the Conservation Commission that these restrictions be renewed on portions of four Boardman river.

They also recommended that the "flies only" regulation covering a stretch of the East Branch of Fox river be lifted. The Upper Peninsula stream is no longer adapted for research of this type since cover along its bank has closed approximately 75 percent of the restricted area to fly fishing ng. In a boundary change, Depart ment officials proposed a with-drawal of the "flies only" restric-tion on about one mile of the South Branch of AuSable river. The present boundary would be shortened from Steckert Bridge to Deer Heart Road.

The change would reduce an enforcement and eliminate ob-ections from most cottage owners along the river.

Commissioners will act on these and other recommended regulations governing Michigan's 1959-60 fishing seasons during their September 3-4 meeting at the Higgins Lake training school.
